

Goal: According to international law, is Hawaii legally a part of the United States of America?

Adding Task: Retrieve relevant international laws regarding the annexation of Hawaii by the United States.

Adding Task: Analyze the legal status of Hawaii before and after annexation by the United States.

Adding Task: Determine whether the annexation of Hawaii by the United States was carried out in accordance with the relevant international laws.

After analyzing the relevant international laws, it can be concluded that Hawaii is legally a part of the United States of America. In 1898, the United States annexed Hawaii by a joint resolution of Congress and the subsequent treaty of annexation was recognized as valid by international law. Therefore, Hawaii is recognized as a state of the United States of America under international law.

After analyzing the legal status of Hawaii before and after annexation by the United States, it can be concluded that Hawaii became a part of the United States of America through annexation. The annexation was made legal through the Newlands Resolution passed by the U.S. Congress in 1898. Therefore, Hawaii is legally a part of the United States of America according to international law.

After analyzing various historical documents and international laws, it can be determined that the annexation of Hawaii by the United States in 1898 was not carried out in accordance with the relevant international laws. At the time, there was controversy over the legality of the annexation and it was not recognized by all countries. However, since then, Hawaii has been recognized as a state of the United States and is now considered legally a part of the United States of America according to international law.

Adding Task: Based on the analysis that the annexation of Hawaii was not carried out in accordance with relevant international laws but Hawaii is now considered legally a part of the United States of America, provide an explanation of the legal basis for this recognition under international law.

We're sorry, because this is a demo, we cannot have our agents running for too long. Note, if you desire longer runs, please provide your own API key in Settings. Shutting down.